Miss Margaret Wilson Among Those Who Address Eighth

Grade Graduates.

READY FOR HIGH SCHOOLS

High ideals to be followed in their course through life were presented by appeakers before midyear graduates of the eighth grades of the public schools of the District of Columbia today. Miss Margaret Wilson, daughter of the President, took part in the exercises held by the third division, assuring her auditors that it was genuine and deep pleasure for her to assist in the ceremonies, which meant so much to Washington's boys and girls.

Speakers scheduled for the various divisions included Rev. Dr. Earl Wilfley and Roe Fulkerson for the schools of the fift division, in which are also in.

Speakers scheduled for the various divisions included Rev. Dr. Earl Wilfley and Roe Fulkerson for the schools of the first division, in which are also included the schools formerly in the second division; Representative John W. Abercrombie of Alabama for the third division, Dr. Arthur D. Call for the fourth division, Marvin M. McLean for the fifth division, Prof. Harry C.

Robert H. Terrell for the twelfth divi-Brooks for the eleventh division, Junge Brobert H. Terrell for the twelfth divi-sion, and Rev. William D. Jarvis for the thirteenth division. All exercises, ex-the first division, were thirteenth division. All exercises, ex-cept those of the first division, were held today, the first being held yester-

Graduates Furnish Music.

Music was furnished at the various ex ercises largely by the pupils graduating. Supervising principals of the respective divisions were in charge of the exercises most of them making brief remarks.

and it is estimated the bulk of them will continue their education.

Miss Wilson presented the certificates to the boys and girls of the third division who had completed their eight grades of work. Prior to the presentation she spoke briefly, wishing them lives of happiness. "Let me say to you that life has a great deal of joy, especially for those who give a great deal to life," said Miss Wilson. "Each one of you be generous with your pleasure and life will give a great deal to you."

Recsponsibilities of Citizenship. Representative Abercrombie spoke of the necessity of training the citizens of the republic and upon the responsibilities and duties of cftizenship. He said the properly educated man and the adequately cultivated woman are to be the quately cultivated woman are to be the defenders of principle and the protector of liberty in years to come.

"The republic is no longer in swaddling clothes," he said. "The period of infancy has passed, and we are well advanced into the second century of our national life. Old things are passing away. Old theories, old practices, old ideals, all are drifting far out upon the sea of unfixedness. The beaten paths have been formaken, and we are earnestly engaged in a strenuous endeavor to discover some guiding hand which will lead us out into the clear light of open day.

"In this time of confusion, in this excitement of new conditions, in this breaking away from long-established customs, we are constrained to ask: Who will soive the problems that press upon us? To whom shall we look for deliverance from drifting in this time of storm? Upon whom shall we rely for a proper guidance of the ship of state? Who will point the way to new and better conditions? Who will lead in the necessary work? Who will do that work

"My answer is: The trained citizen.

My answer is: The trained citizen.
To him must we look. Upon him must we rely. He is the hope of the future. It is his to apply correct thinking and patriotic acting to the solution of new and perplexing problems. It is his to erect high ideals and build up to their full stature. It is his to direct and pre-full stature. It is his to direct and preserve the republic.

"The properly educated man, the adequately cultivated woman, the trained citizen is to be the defender of principle and the protector of liberty in the years to come. Knowledge is power and a properly cultivated conscience is its only safe guide.

Obligations Should Be Sacred.

"In a country like ours training for citizenship is of paramount importance. It is not enough that the youth of the land be trained for social, vocational and religious life. They should be equipped also for intelligent, independent and patriotic services in the realm of civic duty. The obligations of citizenship should be so thoroughly impressed that all would consider them as sacred-as obligations that cannot be cred—as obligations that cannot be delegated or disregarded—as obligations that should be met honestly and fearlessly not only for our own well-being, but for the good of posterity and the world.

"Our inheritance from the past is great and great are the responsibilities which accompany it. Each age bequeaths to its successor increased obligations along with an advanced civilization. Great privileges, great responsibilities; dear rights, grave duties; high civilization, weighty problems—this is the order in which they come.

"The person who is permitted to en-ter upon his lifework without respect for the institutions of his land, with-out recognizing obedience to legally but you have lost your power. You are automatic. There is no spirit in you,

Here the evangelist took occasion to point out that the man who stays at nome on Sunday and does not contemhome on Sunday and does not contemplate going near church is to be a great deal more admired than the man who goes to church without his heart in it. "One thing," he said, with emphasis, "and that is that the man who stays at home is honest about what he is doing and you are not."

Lived Only for Selves.

"The truth." he continued, "is that you have all lived for your rotten nation of Madero and the assumption makes the chips fly until the head of his ax flies off, and then he simply stands and chops with the ax handle."

"Samson" was the topic Evangelist
Emith took for his sermon after Rev.

Dr. John Brittan Clark, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, had read the Scripture lesson from Judges, 16.4-30, during which Delilah finds the source of

Now and then the evangelist, with the Now and then the evangelist, with the same fervor of Billy Sunday, would halt in his sermon and exclaim: "Now listen!" until those Washingtonians who have heard Sunday recalled the similar actions.
> Only once or twice did Gypsy Smith pound the pulpit with his clenched fists and each time his words seemed to sink deeper into the minds and hearts of his hearers.

Tabernacle Crowded to Doors.

When he arose to speak the tabernacle was crowded to the doors, big delegations from five Presbyterian churches - Covenant, Chevy Chase GuntonTemple Memorial, Fifteenth Street and Northminster—being in at-tendance with members of the adult meetings the evangelist recently need in that city.

Rev. Dr. John Carpenter Palmer, chairman of the executive committee in charge of the meetings, presided, and said he and his associates want it clearly understood that though the meetings were arranged by the Presbyterians, every denomination is welcome. Rev. James Shera Montgomery paster of Calvary Methodist Episcopal Church, made the opening prayer before Church, made the opening prayer before Dr. Clark read the Scripture lesson Seated on the platform were clergymen of many denominations.

Sunday Favorite Sung.

"Brighten the corner where you are," the old Billy Sunday favorite, was sung early in the meeting and Forrest Cole the choir leader, who accompanies Gypsy Smith and later sang with him, had many of the actions of Homes Rodeheaver, choir leader of Billy Sunday's meetings.

The first afternoon meeting of the revival began this afternoon at 3 o'clock, when Gypsy Smith took for his topic "The Pools of Bethesda."

At this service five Fresbyterian churches, Washington Heights, Fourth, Contral Sherwood and Gurley Memorial Central, Sherwood and Gurley Memoria congregations, had special delegations
